GLEASON vs. WEATHER

HORSE-TAMING EXHIBITION AGAIN POSTPONED....

Owing to the extreme inclemency of the weather, the exhibition of horse taming which was to have been given by Prof. O. R. Gleason was postponed again last night. All arrangements had been made for an opening exhibition Thursday night, but owing to the cold rain it was thought better to defer until the weather was more pleasant. The postponement was announced in the columns of the evening paper, but despite this nearly two thousand anxious spectators were turned away from the doors of the exhibition grounds at the corner of Main street and Central avenue. The professor says that if the weather is pleasant he will give a performance Saturday night, otherwise will defer until Monday night.

Quite a number of vicious horses have been booked for the opening exhibition and a lively encounter between man and beast is anticipated.

NOBODY WAS KILLED

Katy Flier Wrecked Near Fort Scott.

Baggage, Express, Smoker and Chaircar Follow.

Kansas City, April 8.—Missouri, Kansas and Texas Flyer No. 5, which left St.
Louis last night for the south, was wrecked four miles south of Fort Scott, Kan., at 4:30 this morning by the rails springing. The engine left the track first and following it the baggage car and the smoker and chair cars also were overturned and badly damaged. Sixteen persons were injured but none were killed.
As soon as the first excitement following the wreck had subsided those of the passengers and crew uninjured set quickly to work to aid the unfortunate who were laid beside the track until physicians arrived from Fort Scott.

Two physicians left Fort Scott for the scene on a hand car, and following them closely a wrecking crew borrowed by the Frisco railway started for the wreck.
The injured were taken to Fort Scott.

THE SKIES IN APRIL.

In the early hours of the April evenings we take a last, lingering look at the superb winter constellations, fast hastening to extinction in the light of the summer sun. Sirius, the great Dog Star, is in the southwest, bright and conspicuous as it is a few months ago in the eastern sky. This brightest of stars will shortly disappear, going down before sunset. During an interval of some weeks it will set before and rise after the sun. When, finally, it rises with the sun, the dog days will have begun.

In the west is the colossal figure of Orion, marked by the belt of three brilliant second-magnitude stars. On either side of this belt, at a considerable distance, are the two first-magnitude stars, Betelgeuse and Rigel, the former being to the north. From the "belt" depends the "sword" of Orion, a small row of faint stars, one of which is involved in a nebula, easily visible in an opera glass.
We must look early to see the famous and beautiful Pleiades. This group, which in earlier days played an important part in the calendar of all nations, is now getting near the sun. Two thousand years ago it was invisible at this season, but the procession has brought such a change that they now set two hours later than at the corresponding season at that age. The Pleiades, as well as the sister group, the Hyades, are in the constellation Taurus. The sun enters the "sign" of Taurus on April 20, but the constellation which once occupied this twelfth of the sky has now fallen back an entire sign, and it will be 20,000 years before it returns to its former tenantry.

The Hyades are a group of great beauty and interest, forming a V-shaped figure which has, at the end of one arm, the bright star Aldebaran. This star, Sirius, Betelgeuse, and Rigel form a great diamond with the belt of Orion in the middle. At no time of the year is this group shown with finer effect than now, just as these stars are about to depart. The contrast of color is very fine and effective, Rigel and Sirius being white, the other two a deep red.

North of Sirius and higher in the sky is Procyon, in the constellation Canis Minor. Still further north we come to the interesting pair of stars, Castor and Pollux, almost equal in brightness, and about ten moon-breads apart. Over in the northwest is Capella, in the constellation Auriga. Near to that bright star is a very beautiful little pair known as the Kids, and among rural folk of England and the United States, as the Babes in the Wood.

The great constellation of the Lion is on the meridian south of the zenith. At the western extremity is Regulus, at the first magnitude, and at the eastern, Denebola, of the second. A line formed by projecting backward the two pointers of the Big Dipper passes through this constellation.

The splendid star Arcturus is high in the northern sky. It is pointed out by the handle of the Big Dipper extended to three times its own length. The beautiful constellation of the Northern Crown is near the kite-shaped figure which, along with Arcturus, marks the constellation Bootes. The brilliant white star in the northeast is Spica, in the constellation Virgo. This star, Arcturus and Denebola, form a great equilateral triangle, which becomes a diamond by adding the second magnitude star Cor-corati, at the point opposite Spica.

Mars will set at about 1:30 throughout the month. It is, therefore, only in the very early evening and at the beginning of the month that the interesting planet can be seen with anything like satisfaction. It is in the western sky, closely following the sun.

On the evening of April 21, and one or two evenings before and after, there will be an opportunity to see the planet Mercury, provided weather conditions are good. In nine cases out of ten the atmosphere is not sufficiently clear to permit us to take advantage of these infrequent opportunities. All the greater is the reason for being on the alert as each single one. Look at the western horizon as soon after sunset as the stars begin to appear. Look near the western horizon in the track of the departing sun.
The only star that it is possible to see in that locality is the planet which is the object of the search. To have seen Mercury one or several times is counted a distinct triumph by every amateur observer.

Jupiter, Venus, and Saturn are all in the morning sky. The two former rise not far in advance of the sun. On April 22 there are in conjunction only a moon breath apart. It will be worth rising early to see those two brilliant planets so close proximity. Venus is the brighter and more southerly of the pair.
Saturn rises a little before 4 o'clock at the beginning of the month, and a little before 2 at its close. The planet shines as a pale, fire-magnitude star.—N. Y.

SULLY'S STORY AT LUNCHEON.

Daniel J. Sully, on the day of his admission to the Chicago Board of Trade, lunched at the Chicago Club. He wore a new derby hat, for he had been pretty severely mauled by the brokers, and his old hat had been altogether ruined.

"You are not wearing the same hat you had on this morning, sir," a reporter said to Mr. Sully with a smile.

"No," the broker admitted, and he went on:

"Now, I'll tell you an appropriate and timely story—a story about a hat and about Easter."

"Two women shook hands warmly after church on an Easter Sunday morning, and while they conversed they examined each other's apparel with their bright eyes."

"How becoming your Easter hat is," said the first woman.

"Oh, do you think so?" said the other.

"Yes, indeed. It looks almost as well as it did last year."—Chicago Chronicle.

THE TRANS-SIBERIAN RAILWAY

The correspondent of the Matin in the Far East, writing from Kharbin on February 6, says he has been fortunate enough to meet at this place the French explorer, M. Chaffanjon, who has given him some interesting information. The first question discussed was how it is that the Russians risk so much money in constructing all kinds of railroads on territory which they only tenants, even if it be for 99 years. The land for the construction of the railway has only been loaned to Russia for that period. According to M. Chaffanjon, who has seen a copy of the treaty, it contains what he calls a master clause, which is curious.
After stipulating that the railroad company has the right to station along the lines as many troops as are necessary for the purpose of protection and surveillance, the treaty contains the following remarkable addition, which does credit to Rus-

At the Crawford.

On account of the severe storm last night there was but a small audience present at the Crawford to see the presentation of "David Garrick" by the Ervin Blunkall company, but those who did attend were perfectly satisfied, and by the liberal applause given throughout the evening proved they were more than pleased. This is the first time this play has been presented here, although it is not a new one, having been presented in the past with great success, and it would be safe to say, if it had not been seen such a bad night, this performance would have been greeted by a large audience, for many theater-goers have expressed a desire to see it. The play has many amusing scenes and with them just enough strong scenes to make it interesting and, in all, pleasing. The balcony scenes for "Romeo and Juliet," which was presented as a prologue, was excellent. Mr. Blunkall as Romeo in this scene proved himself equal to delineating Shakespearean characters in a most creditable manner. His work in the different characters he has presented here has made him quite a favorite. It would be difficult to speak in too warm terms of Miss Lillian Atwood, for her work is thoroughly artistic. In the part of Ada Lugot Miss Atwood was charming.
Frank Bonner as "Squire Ching," was clever. Many theater-goers are missing a treat in not seeing this company, for they are usually seen in repertoire work and the plays are new and exceptionally good.
The "Eagles" will attend in a body tonight to see the farce comedy-drama, "Confusion," which will be presented tonight. Matinee and night. "Confusion."

"Sandy Bottom," which comes to the Crawford on Tuesday night, April 12, will try for the first time popular prices. It is one of the leading melodramas of modern years, which in this day of froth and folly on the stage affords the true which appeals to all lovers of the higher ideals of the dramatic art. The piece is one of those masterpieces of realism in which the people portray a plain country folk, always so interesting when faithfully portrayed on the stage. "Sandy Bottom" as it will be seen here is so realistic that one can almost imagine one's self listening to the quaint manners of speech of the people themselves, instead of mere stage characterizations.

What promises to be a most novel and entertaining exhibition is that to be given by the International Biograph company at the Crawford Thursday and Friday, April 14 and 15.

The splendid run of the Wichita fire department will be shown and as this is the first motion picture of a local subject in the city, it has aroused more than passing interest.

The company carry a large variety of films, the list including the Russian-Japanese war, Chicago theater fire, Bal-more fire, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Tip Van Winkle," "Robinson Crusoe,"
"The Grapes," "The Last of the Mohicans," "A Voyage to the Moon," and many comic and mysterious subjects. To the opening performance ladies will be admitted free under usual conditions.

Gideon's "Georgia Camp Meeting" company will appear at the Crawford on Wednesday, April 14, and will present the most attractive list of novelties that has ever been offered by any colored company, with more comedians, more singers, more dancers and a better musical organization. The program is replete with new ballads, acts and funny sayings, while the fun is fast and funny, as the screams and shouts of the audience testify to nightly. A high class concert band and orchestra will render selections.

At the Toler.

The Holden Stock company, who have been absent from the city for a few days, will return in time to give the last performance of "Over the Sea" tonight at the Toler. There will be no matinee this afternoon. Monday night will be India fire night under usual conditions.

A new line of specialties will be introduced. Everything up-to-date.

JAPANESE IDEAS.

"It's so Japanese, you know," said the young housewife to her friend as she sat on a cushion top at the fancy goods counter the other day, and on questioning there was found that this thought predominates in the choice of fresh furnishings at this season. Anything that is in the least suggestive of Japanese decorations is in popular demand.

Among the favorite novelties is a Japanese material known as anataf. It is a form of stripes of raised work in a pale color on a white ground. The prettiest, coolest, and most inviting looking cushions of the season are those covered with this material. With the top of anataf the cushions are trimmed with a deep frill about five inches in width, at the edge of which are knotted alternate van-dykes of knotted trimmed hand-made net dyes of various colors, and a group of eight or nine tassels, then a netted vandyke, and so on.

Anatolian curtains, like the cushion covers, are exceedingly dainty because they are washable. They are trimmed at the top and bottom and the inner edge.
Like the cushions, with van dykes of netted work, alternating with the groups of color and tassels. Many of these curtains show crossbars of pale green, yellow, red, and blue.
